Two Types of wireless Configurations were used, the first is Mobile ad-hoc wireless network and the other is the Access point (AP) wireless network. An Environment of variable number of nodes was established, certain nodes were specified as a transmitted nodes and the rest considered as a receiving nodes. NS2 (Network Simulator version 2) was used to achieve the simulation part of the project, a TCL (Tool Control Language) scripting language and NAM (Network Animator) were used also. The comparisons of results are made in terms of Packet loss, Packet Delivery, and Packet Turn Around Time.
