THIRD GENERATION WIRELESS PHONE THREAT ASSESSMENT FOR AIRCRAFT COMMUNICATION AND NAVIGATION RADIOS

BiblioGov. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 218 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.5in. Radiated emissions in aircraft communication and navigation bands are measured from third generation (3G) wireless mobile phones. The two wireless technologies considered are the latest available to general consumers in the US. The measurements are conducted using reverberation chambers. The results are compared against baseline emissions from laptop computers and personal digital assistant devices that are currently allowed to operate on aircraft. Using existing interference path loss data and receivers interference threshold, a risk assessment is performed for several aircraft communication and navigation radio systems. In addition, cumulative interference effects of multiple similar devices are conservatively estimated or bounded. The effects are computed by summing the interference power from individual devices that is scaled according to the interference path loss at its location. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
